SAM'L PRICE, ESQ., of Greenbrier county, who was Lieutenant-Governor of Virginia along with Extra Billy Smith from 1863 up to the fall of Richmond, is in the city, stopping at the Grant House. Mr. Price lived in this city in 1838-7, and went from here to Greenbrier. He is a native of Farquier county, and has the reputation of being a lawyer of decided ability. He does not give a very flattering picture of things in Greenbrier. He says, however, that the people are thoroughly sured of all resistance to the Government, and desire nothing so much as an opportunity to build themselves up again in material prosperity. Greenbrier is at present very much cut of from the rest of the world, having, so In the money market there is conting the more of the money market there is conting the market the an opportunity to build themselves up-again in material prosperity. Green-brier is at present very much cut off-from the rest of the world, having, so-far, neither mail lines or postoffices. Mr. Price traveled here on horseback, as far as Webster, on the North Western Virginia road, and there took the

The friends of the young man may have been able to think of something in worse taste. But we can hardly conceive of it. Words are things. Words commending treasonable acts, are treasonable in their nature. The men who use such language as we have quoted, complain that we suspect the sincerity of their professions of loyalty.

THE commissioner of internal revenue has decided that butchers who pay a license tax of $10, may retail other merchandise than meat at the same without a license; but they cannot peddie the same without a license; but chers who pay $5 license may peddie meat or fish without a peddier's license, but cannot sell other articles.

On the 16th of October last, the New York World asserted that Mr. Johnson "abetted disunion at the start," and on the 7th of November, tearing single paragraphs from Congressional records, it endeavored to prove him a secossionist. Did the World really persuade itself that President Johnson was a secossionist, and is that why it has become so fond of him?

There never was a time when business with our mercantile bouses was so brisk. The demand for every description of goods is so great as to exhaustocks which it was thought was sufficient to meet the wants of the season. As a consequence, prices have largely advanced, notwithstanding which there is no falling off in the demand. In all parts of the country the hum of workshops that had been for four years hushed has resumed, labor meets with remunerative reward, and every avenue of industry invites new comers. This great activity is a subject for general rejoicing, if for no other reason than this: that it confounds the theories of that large class of Northern and European friends of the robellion who predicted that the close of the war would bring anarchy and financial ruin on the North.

A country, in which the people manifest such a spirit, is the country to invest capital in. But after referring to those points, he said:

"There is one thing which has impressed my mind more than any other thing in my visit to this country, and that is the way in which you have absorbed your large army. I know somewhat of the nature of standing armies in Europe. We know what a standing army means. We have seen Russia go into conflict with a large standing army and come out with a burden which has made her, instead of the strongest, among the weakest of nations. Austria has so far crippled her resources as to be almost in the power of her neighbors. And we have lived to see an army without parallel in anything that Europe has ever seen and we have seen that army simply absorbed in the regular industrial and producing ranks of the nation. And you have Generals "There is one thing which has in In the money market there is continued case, and loans are easily effected at 5 and 6 per cent.
